

LIGHTFOOT CASE IS NOW UP TO W. W. THAYER

Bar Association Refers Back but Fails to Offer Any Real Solution

Partially clearing the atmosphere, shedding new, sensational light on the controversy, but offering no solution for the attorney general, the Bar Association has referred back to the territorial official the charges brought against Attorney Joseph Lightfoot by Claudius M. McBride.

At the association's meeting yesterday afternoon the report of the special committee of three, appointed to investigate the charges against Lightfoot, was read and adopted, and finally, after much discussion, ordered submitted to Attorney General Thayer.

At the same time counter charges, brought by Lightfoot against McBride but which, unlike the McBride statements, are not supported by affidavits, were presented by the special committee in the form of a supplementary report. The Bar Association carefully kept its hands off this latter document, simply referring it in toto to the attorney general.

Briefly, Lightfoot states, in a letter to the committee, that McBride in 1909 offered to sell him correspondence from Governor Frear's office. At that time McBride was Governor Frear's private secretary. It is stated unofficially that this correspondence had to do with the Japanese strike, in which Lightfoot was actively interested as counsel for the Japanese. Lightfoot refused in his letter that he not only refused to accept the secret correspondence proffered by the governor's secretary, but "ejected" him from his office.

The committee's recommendation is that "the association record its condemnation of the conduct of Mr. Lightfoot; second, that the association request Mr. Lightfoot to make to the circuit court of the third judicial district publicly, proper reparation and apology for his conduct; third, that

HAWAII IMPORT TRADE SHOWS NO SIGN OF BUSINESS DEPRESSION

Figures Show People of Territory Are Buying More Goods Now Than Ever

With its exports reduced by nearly twelve million dollars, Hawaii nevertheless increased its imports by more than six million dollars, in the twelve months ended June 30, 1913, as compared with the corresponding period ended last year. Shipments to the United States mainland were $42,713,184, a decrease of $12,362,886. Of the total amount, $60,722 represented foreign merchandise, an increase of $40,468. Shipments from the mainland to Hawaii were $30,646,089, an increase of $6,993,184. Foreign merchandise representing $234,190, which was $44 less than the year before.

Imports to Hawaii from foreign countries were $6,873,531, an increase of $1,275,087. Exports from Hawaii to foreign countries were $758,646, an increase of $385,373, of the amount $18,362 being foreign goods, which made $3758 of the gain. Thus, while the imports from foreign countries increased 22.77 per cent, the exports to foreign countries increased 103.24 per cent. This is a tremendous exhibit of gaining upon the balance of trade by Hawaii in its commerce with foreign countries. It also indicates the increasing value of this territory to the United States in swelling the nation's commerce.

While the balance of trade with foreign countries against Hawaii increased by $889,714, actually, that with the mainland in favor of Hawaii was reduced by $18,356,070, or about 60 per cent. In both cases the figures indicate a large gain in the purchasing capacity of Hawaii, for, in the case of the direct foreign trade, it has already been seen that the ratio of increase of exports is far in excess of that of the increase of imports, and, in the case of the mainland, the increase of imports in the face of a decrease of exports proves the possession of surplus wealth not related to the amount of products the territory has to sell in a given period outside of its bounds.

The answer to the question of how Hawaii has been able to treat itself so well with the commodities of existence and subsistence in the twelve months under review, while severe depression of its leading resource has been experienced, must undoubtedly be found, at least in part, in the largely increased expenditures of the army and navy here. Some of the explanation, however, must relate to the growing tourist business.

That this is an important factor in the prosperity indicated by the trade returns, the current reports of improved business, generally attributed to that source, by storekeepers, go to prove. No mistake will be made in expenditures upon tourist promotion work, presupposing that it be judiciously done, the only ground of discussion being as to where the burden of the enterprise should fall.

PROMISED FOR THE PLAYHOUSES

Monte Carter, at the head of a musical comedy organization which is credited with meeting with phenomenal success on the Pacific coast, will arrive at Honolulu the first part of next month with a score of pretty and talented performers. As "Izzy," Monte Carter is rated as the cleverest Hebrew comedian on the coast and contrary to most popular priced musical comedy shows his company combines high class variety with efficiency. The "dancing chicks" are a big feature and are predicted to enlist the good will of Honolulu audiences.

Shortly before noon the pirates of the Keokuk boarded the steamer Kinan and shanghaied therefrom such persons as George Davis, C. C. Kennedy, J. A. Keane, Jack Lucas and other prominent officials. Placing them in the brig of their craft, they cruised around and finally landed their captives on a strange vessel. There was a lively struggle on the Kinan during the capture.

Following their capture of prominent local and island officials, the pirates again boarded the Kinan and stole from the saloon a keg of Honolulu's "best brew." This they took aboard the Keokuk and then dared those on the Kinan to come after it.

One of the most pleasing features of the entertainment aboard the Kinan was the presentation of a souvenir "ring" to each delegate and visitor. The "rings" turned out to be cow-tails, however, and were brought into use to cheer the boat crews on to success.

Many of the business houses of the city were decorated in honor of the occasion of the Regatta and the coming of the island delegates to the convention. American flags and bunting prevailed throughout.

MURDER WITNESS LORD-YOUNG MAY BE ABOARD CAPE FINISTERRE AGAIN SECURE BIG CONTRACT

The arrival of the British freighter Cape Finisterre, from Puget Sound, expected in port Monday morning, may clear up the mystery surrounding the disappearance of Herman Kefauver, a private in the United States army, who is alleged by the police to have been an important witness for the prosecution in the case of the brutal murder of a Japanese captain at Laila, some weeks ago.

Ray C. Smith and George Lyons, members of company C, First Infantry, stationed at Lelethun, were held for investigation following the murder, which took place the night of August 10.

While members of the local detective force were pursuing several lines of inquiry and a search for witnesses, it is stated that the Cape Finisterre, having been discharged of a shipment of Australian coal, sailed for Eureka, Cal. While present at the sailing of the Cape Finisterre, and concluding an unsuccessful quest for stowaways, Harbor Officer Carter saw a man partially arrayed in khaki, standing at the rail of the freighter, whom he recognized as Kefauver.

The matter was reported to headquarters, and a message forwarded to the coast. When the Cape Finisterre reached her destination, the Eureka officers placed the man under arrest. He was later taken to San Francisco, there to await further action by the military authorities.

A copy of this report was furnished Mr. Lightfoot and a copy also sent to the attorney general. The report is signed by the entire committee, consisting of John W. Cathcart, Albert F. Judd and Alexander D. Larnach. Supplementary Report.

The supplementary report, dealing with Lightfoot's remarks concerning McBride's alleged act in 1909, is as follows:

"In framing its report in the matter of the investigation of Joseph Lightfoot, the special committee has purposely refrained from the appearance of any participation of what might be termed the McBride-Lightfoot controversy. The committee, however, believes that the members of the committee would be derelict in their duties to the association if they did not call to the association's attention by means of this supplementary report the following statement made by Mr. Lightfoot in his letter to the committee, dated September 9, 1913, with particular reference to the last sentence thereof:

"Before Mr. McBride filed his charges against me he requested Mr. Manuel de Mello, a juror of the Third Circuit of the April term, to make affidavit in support of his charges containing statements absolutely without foundation in fact and threatened Mr. de Mello that if he refused to make the affidavit he (McBride) would have de Mello arrested on a charge of larceny, which charge, upon the refusal of de Mello to make the affidavit, was sworn to by Mr. McBride before the district magistrate of Kaituma and de Mello was arrested, a police process being subsequently entered when the case came on for hearing. I mention this not for the purpose of making a charge against Mr. McBride, but to show that his charges against me are not actuated by any sense of duty to the court, but were the result of personal animosity. This animosity on the part of Mr. McBride and myself has existed since the year 1909 when I was compelled to eject Mr. McBride from my office after his proposal to me to supply me with copies of letters written by Governor Frear, whose private secretary he then was, concerning matters in litigation in which I was at that time vitally interested."

"This statement concerns Mr. McBride, now a member of the bar of the Supreme Court but not of the association. Attorney General Thayer was present at yesterday's meeting but took no part in the discussion or voting."
